MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES*INTRODUCTION

3 This lawsuit, like hundreds of others commenced by Righthaven as the agent of Stephens 4 Media, should never have happened. Righthaven filed a baseless lawsuit against Defendants 5 Democratic Underground, LLC and David Allen (collectively, “Democratic Underground”) for 6 infringement of a copyright (i) that it did not own, and (ii) over an unquestionably fair use.
7 Stephens Media had both a direct financial interest and the power to stop this lawsuit from the 8 beginning. But it chose not to do so. Instead, when Democratic Underground filed a 9 Counterclaim against Stephens Media—the true owner of the copyright at issue—seeking to 10 protect itself with a declaration of non-infringement, Stephens Media repeatedly denied that it 11 retained any rights in the copyright, something this Court said was “flagrantly false—to the point 12 that the claim is disingenuous, if not outright deceitful.”

13 The truth, as exposed by this lawsuit, is that Righthaven and Stephens Media entered into 14 a champertous scheme, where Stephens Media would assign Righthaven a bare right to sue on 15 Stephens Media’s copyrights, in contravention of well-established Ninth Circuit law. Righthaven 16 would then proceed to sue hundreds of small website operators and bloggers, hoping to squeeze 17 them for quick, nuisance-value settlements. But Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen would 18 not be squeezed. Through their efforts defending against Righthaven’s claims and pursuing 19 Democratic Underground’s Counterclaim against Stephens Media, they exposed Righthaven and 20 Stephens Media’s scheme, leading to the end of Righthaven’s litigation campaign.

21 Democratic Underground and David Allen have been universally successful in this 22 lawsuit, obtaining final judgments on the merits against both Stephens Media and Righthaven.
23 Democratic Underground won dismissal of Righthaven’s claim “with prejudice” and “on the 24 merits” based on its lack of ownership of the asserted copyright. Democratic Underground won 25 summary judgment on its Counterclaim against Stephens Media on the grounds that the posted 26 excerpt was a fair use and because neither Mr. Allen nor Democratic Underground committed a 27 volitional act of copyright infringement. But this success came at a price. Democratic 28 Underground and its pro bono counsel were forced to spend well over a thousand hours fighting

1 Righthaven and Stephens Media at virtually every step.

2 Under settled law, Mr. Allen and Democratic Underground are entitled to an award of 3 attorneys' fees in the amount of $774,683.25 pursuant to 17 U.S.C. § 505. Moreover, these fees 4 should be awarded jointly and severally against Righthaven and Stephens Media, due to their 5 concerted efforts in bringing this litigation against Democratic Underground, and due to the 6 common basis of Democratic Underground's defense and prosecution of its Counterclaim.
 7 Indeed, Righthaven, [REDACTED], now claims to be judgment proof. Anything 8 less than a joint and several award would allow Stephens Media to accomplish the wrongful 9 objective of the scheme: to allow the true party in interest to escape responsibility by creating a 10 sham, hired gun company to do its bidding.

11 FACTUAL BACKGROUND

12 A. Righthaven's Formation and Stephens Media's Control of its Litigation 13 Campaign.

14 Righthaven, LLC ("Righthaven") was created [REDACTED]
 15 [REDACTED] and for Stephens Media's ultimate benefit. It acted as a de facto law 16 firm to pursue hundreds of no-warning, sham copyright infringement lawsuits against bloggers
 17 and website operators who hosted even short excerpts of news articles from Stephens Media's 18 Las Vegas Review-Journal newspaper ("LVRJ"). In this endeavor, Righthaven was Stephens 19 Media's agent, contractually controlled by Stephens Media in its litigation campaign.

20 Righthaven and Stephens Media's relationship was documented in Righthaven's 21 Operating Agreement ("RHOA") (Declaration of Laurence Pulgram Decl. ("Pulgram Decl.") Ex.
 22 F) and the parties' original Strategic Alliance Agreement ("SAA") (Dkt. 79-1 Ex. A), each of 23 which became publicly exposed through this lawsuit. The RHOA and SAA are part of a single 24 "integrated transaction." SAA § 2. Righthaven is a limited liability company owned by two 25 other limited liability companies, each with a 50 percent stake. RHOA § 4.1. As the SAA
 26 recites, one of the owners of Righthaven must be a "Stephens Media Affiliate" called SI Content 27 Monitor, LLC, which "is presently and shall throughout the Term be Controlled by common 28 owners [with Stephens Media] with no material variation in said ownership." SAA § 2(a). This

1 owner is composed of members of the Arkansas investment banking billionaire Warren Stephens'
 2 family, and is referred to by the RHOA as "Stephens" (RHOA Preamble). RHOA § 15.5
 3 (covenanting that SI Content Monitor LLC is "Controlled by members of the family of Warren A.
 4 Stephens and trusts for the benefit of such individuals"). The Stephens Media affiliate 5 [REDACTED] RHOA § 9.1. Public records reflect that the 6 affiliate, SI Content Monitor, is now dissolved. Pulgram Decl. Ex. G.

7 The other owner of Righthaven is a company named Net Sortie Systems, an LLC
 8 controlled and managed by Las Vegas attorney Steve Gibson, the CEO of Righthaven who filed 9 this action as lead counsel for Righthaven. Dkt. 1 (Complaint); Dkt. 47 Ex. F; RHOA § 15.5.

10 [REDACTED]
 11 RHOA Exhibit 9.1. There is no record of any other funding or capital contribution to 12 Righthaven—although, as discussed below, Stephens Media and Righthaven did jointly employ 13 New York counsel to defend this action.

14 Under the RHOA, Righthaven's purpose was to receive a "limited, revocable assignment 15 (with a license-back) of a copyright from Third Persons," most commonly Stephens Media and 16 the LVRJ. RHOA § 3.2(c). Righthaven would then obtain a registration listing it as the copyright 17 owner so it could file lawsuits, with the understanding that the real copyright owner "would 18 ultimately enjoy the copyright registration." Id. §§ 3.2(c)-(d). On the same day that Righthaven 19 executed the RHOA, it entered into the SAA. Under the terms of the SAA, Righthaven was to 20 file lawsuits based on uses of Stephens Media's news articles and Righthaven and Stephens 21 Media would split the proceeds of that litigation fifty-fifty, less any litigation costs. SAA § 5.

22 Under the SAA, Stephens Media had the right to control what lawsuits Righthaven 23 brought and how Righthaven resolved them. As this Court has noted: "The SAA gives Stephens 24 Media the right to prevent Righthaven from suing an alleged copyright infringer for various 25 specific reasons, including that the lawsuit might 'result in an adverse result to Stephens Media.'" Righthaven LLC v. Democratic Underground LLC, 791 F. Supp. 2d 968, 972 (D. Nev. 2011)
 26 (citing SAA § 3.3). Even after a suit was brought, Stephens Media retained an absolute right of 27 reversion, subject only to later reimbursement of Righthaven's investment in the litigation.
 28

1 Section 8, entitled “Stephens Media’s Right of Reversion” states: “Stephens Media shall have the 2 right at any time to terminate, in good faith, any Copyright Assignment (the ‘Assignment 3 Termination’) and enjoy a right to complete reversion to the ownership of any copyright that is 4 the subject of a Copyright Assignment . . . .” SAA § 8.<sup>1</sup>

5 Righthaven and Stephens Media’s arrangement was flawed from the outset as a matter of 6 copyright law. Stephens Media either would not or could not agree to an outright assignment of 7 copyrights in its news articles to Righthaven, yet governing law explicitly prohibits naked 8 assignments of the right to sue under copyrights. Silvers v. Sony Pictures Entertainment, Inc., 9 402 F.3d 881 (9th Cir. 2005). This tension resulted in a convoluted scheme whereby Stephens 10 Media and Righthaven executed documents entitled “Copyright Assignments,” purporting on 11 their face to provide Righthaven with all the necessary rights to sue, while underneath, by 12 operation of the SAA, everything other than the right to sue was simultaneously reconveyed to 13 Stephens Media. In actuality, Stephens Media assigned Righthaven nothing beyond a bare right 14 to sue, in contravention of Silvers. See Dkt. 38 Ex. A (Copyright Assignment).

15 It was not apparent to anyone looking at these “assignments,” including the courts to 16 which they were presented as evidence of standing, that the SAA stripped Righthaven of anything 17 that resembled a valid conveyance of rights. The SAA provided that “Righthaven shall have no 18 right or license to Exploit or participate in the receipt of royalties from the Exploitation of 19 Stephens Media Assigned Copyrights other than the right to proceeds in associated with a 20 Recovery” in a lawsuit. SAA § 7.2. The SAA explicitly reconveyed to Stephens Media all rights
 21 other than the right to sue, while also giving it control over whether or not Righthaven could file 22 suit (id. § 3.3), and whether or not to terminate the assignment (id. § 8). Looking to these 23 provisions, this Court concluded that the SAA was specifically designed “to be sure that 24 Righthaven did not obtain any rights other than the bare right to sue.” Democratic Underground,

25
 26 <sup>1</sup> The SAA also makes clear Righthaven’s role as Stephens Media’s agent. Stephens Media may 27 assign copyrights of its choice to Righthaven to search for infringement. SAA §§ 3.1, 3.2. Once a 28 copyright is purportedly “assigned” to Righthaven, Stephens Media “engages” Righthaven on an exclusive basis to perform searching for copyright infringement and pursuit of infringement actions. SAA §§ 3.1-3.3.

1 791 F. Supp. 2d at 973-74.

2 Despite these provisions, Righthaven repeatedly offered these “assignments,” and the 3 registrations obtained on their backs, as proof of its standing to bring lawsuits on Stephens Media
4 news articles. See, e.g., Righthaven, LLC v. Vote For The Worst, LLC, et al., Case No. 2:10-cv-
5 01045-KJDGWF, Dkt. 15 at 4; Righthaven, LLC v. Majorwager.com, Inc., Case No. 2:10-cv-
6 00484-GMNLRL, Dkt. 9 at 2; Righthaven, LLC v. Dr. Shezad Malik Law Firm P.C., Case No.
7 2:10-cv-00636-RLH-RJJ, Dkt. 11 at 2. Righthaven never once disclosed the existence or terms of 8 the SAA and its effect on the legitimacy of these notices. Likewise, Stephens Media relied upon 9 the bare “assignment” without disclosing the SAA in its Motion to Dismiss the Counterclaim 10 here. Dkt. 38. The failure to disclose led “the district judges of this district to believe that 11 [Righthaven] was the true owner of the copyright in the relevant news articles.” Democratic 12 Underground, 791 F. Supp. 2d. at 976. All of this was done in an apparent effort to shield the 13 true copyright owner, Stephens Media, who stood to take 50% of any recovery in a suit on its 14 copyrights, from any adverse consequences of the suits, such as exposure for an opponent’s 15 attorneys’ fees or the discovery burdens of party status. Righthaven filed a total of 218 cases in 16 this district alone alleging copyright infringement of Stephens Media’s content.

17 B. Righthaven’s Lawsuit Against Democratic Underground and the 18 Counterclaim Against Stephens Media and Righthaven.

19 On May 13, 2010, a Democratic Underground user named “Pampango” posted an excerpt 20 of an article from the LVRJ entitled “U.S. Senate Race: Tea Party Power Fuels Angle” on 21 Democratic Underground’s website (the “News Article”). See Dkt. 1, Ex. 3. The excerpt was 22 almost entirely factual in nature and contained only the first 5 sentence of the 50 sentence News 23 Article. The excerpt included a link for viewers to find the LVRJ’s original of the full article.
24 Within 40 minutes, three Democratic Underground users left comments on the post, each of 25 which dealt with the subject matter of the article. Id. Ex. 3.

26 In keeping with its scheme with Stephens Media, Righthaven acquired a “Copyright 27 Assignment” covering the News Article, obtained a registration, and filed suit against Democratic 28 Underground. See Dkt. 1 (Complaint); Dkt. 38 Ex. A (Copyright Assignment). For added in

1 terrorem effect, the complaint also named the owner of the LLC, David Allen, personally. Once 2 Mr. Allen learned of this lawsuit, he had no choice but to hire attorneys to defend himself and 3 Democratic Underground.

4 Unwilling to be bullied into a settlement of a baseless claim, he spent $3,612 on an 5 attorney before engaging pro bono counsel at the Electronic Frontier Foundation (“EFF”).
 6 Declaration of David Allen (“Allen Decl.”) ¶ 3, Ex. A. The EFF subsequently allied with 7 Winston & Strawn, and then Fenwick & West, to defend. Suspicious of the true relationship 8 between Stephens Media and Righthaven, Democratic Underground filed a Counterclaim for 9 declaratory relief of non-infringement, naming Stephens Media, the true copyright owner, as well 10 as Righthaven, as Counter-Defendants, based on the former’s creation of, direction of, control of, 11 financial interest in, and collusion with the latter to pursue meritless claims of infringement.

12 The litigation that followed resulted in complete victory for Democratic Underground, 13 both on its claim that Stephens Media was the real party in interest, and on the merits of the fair 14 use and volition defenses. First, this Court ruled that under the SAA, Righthaven was assigned 15 nothing beyond the bare right to sue in contravention of Silvers, effectively putting an end to 16 Righthaven and Stephens Media’s litigation campaign nationwide. Democratic Underground, 17 791 F. Supp. 2d at 973-74. Second, in ruling on Democratic Underground’s Motion for Summary 18 Judgment on its Counterclaim against Stephens Media, this Court held that the hosting of the 19 short excerpt of the News Article on the Democratic Underground website was a protectable fair 20 use and did not involve a sufficient volitional act by Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen to 21 constitute direct copyright infringement. Dkt. 179 (Final Declaratory Judgment).

22 But getting to these results required Democratic Underground and its counsel to overcome
 23 every hurdle that Righthaven and Stephens Media could conceive. The record of 193 docket 24 entries prior to this motion speaks for itself, but includes the following:

- 25 • Righthaven unsuccessfully moved to voluntarily dismiss its complaint, asserting that 26 this would also moot the Counterclaim, but conditioned dismissal on denial of any 27 attorneys’ fees to Democratic Underground for winning the dismissal—a condition 28 that Democratic Underground opposed given the efforts at defense already incurred.
 Dkts. 36, 45, 57.

- 1 • Joining in Righthaven’s motion, Stephens Media unsuccessfully moved to dismiss the 2 Counterclaim on the basis that it was purportedly not a real party in interest—an argument both parties made before disclosing the SAA. Dkts. 38, 39, 56.
- 3 • In the absence of the SAA, Democratic Underground moved for summary judgment 4 on its fair use and volitional act defenses—a motion that was fully briefed before the SAA was procured. Dkts. 45, 58, 62.
- 5 • Even as it opposed summary judgment on fair use, Righthaven refused to produce a 6 single document in discovery, and Stephens Media produced none of its communications with Righthaven, requiring Democratic Underground to file motions 7 to compel against both opponents.<sup>2</sup> Dkts. 95, 105, 106, 112.
- 8 • Once the SAA was provided, Democratic Underground moved for the right to file supplemental briefing on the standing issue, which this Court granted over 9 Righthaven’s objections (which Stephens Media joined). Dkts. 72, 76, 78, 80, 84.
- 10 • Righthaven and Stephens Media further opposed the unsealing of the SAA, moved to 11 strike, and even asked for an order to show cause regarding contempt based on Democratic Underground’s having filed the SAA under seal—arguments that this 12 Court rejected, thereby making the SAA known to the litigants in the hundreds of other pending cases. Dkts. 85-93.
- 13 • The Court issued an Order to Show Cause and hearing, based on Righthaven failure to 14 disclose its relationship to Stephens Media, ultimately sanctioning Righthaven $5,000, which has never been paid, and ordering a copy of the hearing transcript filed in each 15 case in which Righthaven’s actions were pending. Dkts. 116, 127, 131, 133, 137-138, 143, 145, 148.
- 16 • Bringing in new, high powered New York counsel, Righthaven and Stephens Media 17 twice amended the SAA in an effort to fix the flawed assignment.<sup>3</sup> Stephens Media 18 moved for reconsideration of this Court’s dismissal order<sup>4</sup>, and Righthaven moved to “intervene” based on the second amendment, but this Court again rejected their efforts 19 to avoid Stephens’ status as real party in interest. Dkts. 120, 126, 134, 136, 140, 150, 152, 155, 157.
- 20 • When it finally answered the Counterclaim, Stephens Media denied both that the use 21 of the article was fair use and that Democratic Underground had committed no volitional act in displaying Pampango’s post—requiring Democratic Underground to 22 file and brief a summary judgment motion on the merits of these issues. Dkts. 125, 168, 174, 175.

23 <sup>2</sup> Magistrate Judge Foley did not rule on those motions, finding them moot after the Court’s dismissal of Righthaven’s claims. Dkt. 117.

24 <sup>3</sup> On May 9, 2011, Righthaven and Stephens Media entered into a “clarification” of the SAA, purporting to retroactively invest Righthaven with more than a bare right to sue. See Clarification 25 and Amendment to SAA (Declaration of Mark A. Hinueber (Dkt. 101), Ex. 3). Then, given the clear inadequacy of that document, Righthaven and Stephens Media tried again, entering into a 26 “restatement” on July 7, 2011. See Amended and Restated SAA (Dkt. 134-1). Neither could change the fact that no jurisdiction existed at the initiation of this lawsuit or that Righthaven and 27 Stephens Media’s relationship was and always will be a sham.

28 <sup>4</sup> Stephens Media eventually withdrew that motion, but only after forcing Democratic Underground to respond, again needlessly increasing the fees incurred. Dkt. 152.

- 1 • Meanwhile, Righthaven refused to respond to requests to stipulate to entry of a Rule 2 54(b) entry of partial judgment on the complaint. Instead, Righthaven purported to 3 commence an appeal of the denial of its motion to intervene, thereby seeking to obtain 4 appellate review before entry of judgment and adjudication of attorneys' fees. Dkt.
5 166 ; Pulgram Decl. ¶ 21. The appeal was dismissed for failure to prosecute.
6 Dkt. 183.

7 Despite Righthaven and Stephens Media's coordinated effort to avoid responsibility for this ill
8 considered lawsuit, Democratic Underground prevailed on virtually every issue that the Court 9 decided.

10 ARGUMENT

11 The Copyright Act permits a district court to "award a reasonable attorney's fee to the 12 prevailing party as part of the costs." 17 U.S.C. § 505. Fees are proper when either successful 13 prosecution or successful defense of the action furthers the purposes of the Copyright Act. See 14 Fantasy, Inc. v. Fogerty, 94 F.3d 553, 558 (9th Cir. 1996) ("Fogerty II") ("[A] successful defense 15 of a copyright infringement action may further the policies of the Copyright Act every bit as 16 much as a successful prosecution of an infringement claim by the holder of a copyright") (quoting 17 Fogerty v. Fantasy, Inc., 510 U.S. 517, 524 (1994) ("Fogerty I")). The standards for evaluating 18 whether an award is proper are the same regardless of which party prevails. Id. at 534.

19 The Supreme Court has identified several non-exclusive factors to guide a district court's 20 discretion whether to award attorneys' fees under Section 505: "(1) the degree of success 21 obtained; (2) frivolousness; (3) motivation; (4) objective unreasonableness (both in the factual 22 and in the legal components of the case); and (5) the need, in particular circumstances, to advance 23 considerations of compensation and deterrence." Entm't Research Group v. Genesis Creative 24 Group, 122 F.3d 1211, 1229 (9th Cir. 1997) (citing Fogerty II). To award fees, not all of these 25 factors must be met, and, indeed, "[c]ourts have awarded costs for copyright claims based on a 26 single factor." See Robinson v. Lopez, 69 U.S.P.Q.2d (BNA) 1241 (C.D. Cal. 2003) (citing, inter 27 alia, Fogerty II, 94 F.3d at 558). Ultimately, the district court's decision to grant or deny 28 attorneys' fees is reviewed for an abuse of discretion. Perfect 10, Inc. v. CCBill LLC, 488 F.3d 1102, 1109 (9th Cir. 2007). That parties' received pro bono representation does not alter their entitlement to fees. See, e.g., Cuellar v. Joyce, 603 F.3d 1142, 1143 (9th Cir. 2010); Righthaven

1 LLC v. DiBiase, Case No. 2:10-cv-01343-RLH, 2011 WL 5101938 (D. Nev. Oct. 26, 2011)
 2 (Hunt, J.) (granting fees for pro bono work of Electronic Frontier Foundation and the law firm of 3 Wilson Sonsini Goodrich & Rosati).

4 I. EACH OF THE NINTH CIRCUIT’S FACTORS SUPPORTS AN AWARD OF 5 ATTORNEYS’ FEES.

6 A. Democratic Underground and David Allen Are Prevailing Parties and Their 7 Success in this Action Was Total.

8 With respect to the degree of Democratic Underground’s success, there can be no dispute 9 that it was total. As to Righthaven, Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen secured a dismissal 10 of Righthaven’s sole claim against them for copyright infringement “on the merits” and “with 11 prejudice.” Dkt. 176 (Judgment Against Righthaven). That this dismissal was based on 12 Righthaven’s lack of ownership of a valid copyright in the News Article, one of the elements of 13 copyright infringement as well as a requirement for standing, does not change this. The Ninth 14 Circuit and this Court have repeatedly approved prevailing party’s fees in cases where dismissal 15 was based on a lack of subject matter jurisdiction, and where standing issues are intertwined with 16 the merits, including cases dealing with Righthaven’s lack of ownership of its asserted copyrights
 17 under the SAA and its iterations. See Malijack Productions v. GoodTimes Home Video Corp., 81 18 F.3d 881, 889 (9th Cir. 1996) (affirming grant of prevailing party’s attorneys fees where the 19 plaintiff’s claim was dismissed for lack of subject matter jurisdiction because the plaintiff did not 20 own the copyright being asserted); DiBiase, 2011 WL 5101938, at *1 (“Mr. DiBiase is a 21 prevailing party based on this Court’s June 22, 2011 Order granting his motion to dismiss for lack 22 of subject matter jurisdiction based on Righthaven’s lack of ownership of the copyright and 23 consequent lack of standing”); see also U.S. v. 87 Skyline Terrace, 26 F.3d 923 (9th Cir. 1994)
 24 (overturning denial of prevailing attorneys’ fees under Equal Access to Justice Act to party 25 obtaining dismissal for lack of subject matter jurisdiction).

26 Democratic Underground’s totality of success on its Counterclaim is equally clear. It filed 27 a single Counterclaim against Stephens Media for a declaration of non-infringement based on 28 Democratic Underground’s hosting of an excerpt of the News Article on its website. Dkt. 13.
 After denials that the hosting was a fair use and not a volitional act of infringement in its answer

1 (Dkt. 125 ¶¶ 102-125), on summary judgment Stephens Media did not even contest Democratic 2 Underground’s entitlement to judgment in its favor, conceding that it “does not contest the 3 substantive arguments presented by Democratic Underground on the issue of volitional act and 4 fair use as applied to the material facts of this case. Accordingly, Stephens Media consents to the 5 entry of the Proposed Order submitted by DU as part of its moving papers.” Dkt. 174 (Stephens 6 Media’s Limited Response to Motion for Summary Judgment) at 1:6-9. This Court thereafter 7 granted summary judgment in favor of Democratic Underground holding that the hosting of the 8 excerpt was a protected fair use and that Democratic Underground had committed no volitional 9 act as required for infringement. Dkt. 179 (Final Declaratory Judgment).

10 Accordingly, the degree of success favors awarding Democratic Underground attorneys’ 11 fees. Indeed, the fact that this victory substantially assisted in disposing of hundreds of other 12 cases brought by Righthaven for Stephens Media’s benefit multiplies the success achieved.

13 B. Stephens Media’s and Righthaven’s Pursuit of and Positions in this Lawsuit
 14 Were Frivolous and Objectively Unreasonable.

15 1. Stephens Media’s and Righthaven’s Assertion that Righthaven Had 16 Standing to Pursue its Claims Was Frivolous and Unreasonable.

17 While an opponent’s unreasonableness is by no means required for an award of attorneys’ 18 fees, “unreasonable” is an apt description for Righthaven and Stephens Media’s litigation of this 19 case and the dragnet of similar hastily filed, meritless lawsuits in this district. Fogerty I, 510 U.S.
 20 at 532 n.18. There was never any doubt under established law that Righthaven did not have 21 standing to pursue the claims it asserted at Stephens Media’s behest. That is why Righthaven and 22 Stephens Media worked so hard to hide the terms of the SAA from public view. Silvers 23 unambiguously provides that assignment of a bare right to sue, as here, without any supporting 24 exclusive rights of copyright, is insufficient to confer standing upon a copyright plaintiff. Silvers 25 v. Sony Pictures Entertainment, Inc., 402 F.3d at 884. Righthaven and Stephens Media failed to 26 disclose their true relationship to the Court. They pushed the theory that only Righthaven had 27 ownership of the copyright for months, forcing Democratic Underground to respond to serial
 28 briefs and amendments, restatements, and clarifications of Righthaven and Stephens Media’s

1 SAA, and then to motions to reconsider and intervene. All these efforts sought to create the 2 illusion of a valid ownership interest in the copyright by Righthaven, while still retaining that 3 actual ownership and control in Stephens Media. In total, Democratic Underground had to 4 respond to 17 separate papers filed by Righthaven and Stephens Media all asserting Righthaven's
 5 standing on the basis of three separate versions of the parties' SAA.<sup>5</sup>

6 None of this was supported by any reasonable legal or factual basis. It was, as this Court
 7 concluded, part of a "concerted effort to hide Stephens Media's role in this litigation" carried out 8 in "bad faith" which resulted in nothing but "wasted judicial resources, and needlessly increased 9 [] costs of litigation." Dkt. 138 (Minutes of Proceedings on Order to Show Cause). Ultimately, at 10 the conclusion of this copious briefing, the Court concluded that Righthaven did not have 11 standing to pursue this case, recognizing that Righthaven and Stephens Media's arguments and 12 constructions in support of Righthaven's standing were "flagrantly false—to the point that the 13 claim is disingenuous, if not outright deceitful." Democratic Underground, 791 F. Supp. 2d at 14 973.<sup>6</sup>

15 Righthaven and Stephens Media's arguments were made all the more audacious by the 16 fact that Righthaven has admitted to having been aware of Silvers at the time the SAA was 17 drafted. See Dkt. 78 (Righthaven's Motion for Reconsideration of Motion for Leave to File 18 Supplemental Memorandum) at 6 (claiming that the SAA was drafted to "account[] for Silvers 19 and any other relevant legal authorities"). Despite this knowledge, Stephens Media's General 20 Counsel, Mark Hinueber, signed a declaration admitting that the reason Stephens Media did not 21

22 <sup>5</sup> See Dkts. 1, 36, 38, 39, 56, 57, 58, 78, 80, 99, 100, 120, 126, 134, 136, 150, 151, and related documents.

23 <sup>6</sup> This Court further rejected Righthaven and Stephens Media's "Clarification and Amendment" 24 of the SAA, recognizing that jurisdiction is determined at the time of the filing of the complaint and cannot be changed nunc pro tunc. Democratic Underground, 791 F. Supp. 2d at 975.
 25 Moreover, the Court recognized that even were such an alteration of the jurisdictional facts possible, the amendment made to the SAA was likely not sufficient. Id. at n.1 ("the Court 26 expresses doubt that these seemingly cosmetic adjustments change the nature and practical effect of the SAA"). Other courts in this district that subsequently ruled on the "Clarification and 27 Amendment" held it insufficient to create standing. Righthaven, LLC v. Hoehn, 792 F. Supp. 2d 1138, 1147 (D. Nev. 2011) (holding that May 9, 2011 "Clarification" of SAA provides 28 Righthaven only "illusory" rights and "does not provide Righthaven with any exclusive rights necessary to bring suit").

1 assign the copyright at issue here outright was because Stephens Media wanted to retain control
 2 over its use. See Dkt. 101, Declaration of Mark Hinueber, ¶ 9 (discussing the parties’ intent in 3 agreeing to the SAA and stating that “it was Righthaven’s and Stephen’s Media’s [sic] intent in 4 this regard to acknowledge Stephens Media’s ability to continue to use the assigned content as 5 licensee in the same general manner it had done prior to entering in the SAA. . . .”). In essence, 6 Righthaven and Stephens Media knowingly entered into a scheme, in contravention of Silvers and 7 the law of this Circuit, to attempt to divorce the rights to use and to sue over a copyright.
 8 Democratic Underground, 791 F. Supp. 2d at 973-74 (discussing Righthaven’s and Stephens 9 Media’s intent, concluding “Righthaven and Stephens Media went to great lengths in the SAA to 10 be sure that Righthaven did not obtain any rights other than the bare right to sue” and that “the 11 plain language of the SAA conveys the intent to deprive Righthaven of any right, save for the 12 right to sue alleged infringers and profit from such lawsuits”).

13 Nonetheless, from the very beginning of this lawsuit, Righthaven unreasonably and in bad 14 faith claimed that it was the owner of the copyright in the News Article and possessed all of the 15 exclusive rights under Section 106 of the Copyright Act for that work. Dkt. 1 (“Complaint”)
 16 ¶¶ 28, 35-38. When confronted with arguments by Democratic Underground that Righthaven did 17 not have standing, both Righthaven and Stephens Media disingenuously pointed to the one page 18 Copyright Assignment from Stephens Media to Righthaven, failing to mention that no legally 19 significant rights were actually transferred by that document due to the operation of the SAA 20 behind the scenes.

21 Stephens Media, in particular falsely asserted that it had assigned the “totality of the 22 rights” in the works to Righthaven, and that Righthaven was the true owner of the works, pointing 23 to the Copyright Assignment between the two while neglecting to disclose the existence of the 24 SAA. See, e.g., Dkt. 38 (Stephens Media’s Motion to Dismiss or Strike) at 4 (“Upon entering 25 into the Righthaven Assignment on or about July 19, 2010, Stephens Media did not own the 26 copyright, or any of its divisible rights, in and to the Work. As of the date of this filing, 27 Righthaven remains the sole copyright owner of the Work”); Dkt. 56 (Reply on Motion to 28 Dismiss or Strike) at 2, 4 (“Stephens Media assigned Righthaven the totality of the rights in and

1 to the literary works that is the subject of the Complaint”) (emphasis added); Dkt. 125 (Answer
 2 to Counterclaim) ¶¶ 4-5.<sup>7</sup> Righthaven made similar misrepresentations, pointing to previous court
 3 decisions finding Righthaven had standing based on the Copyright Assignments, but again not 4 disclosing the existence of the SAA that vitiated these assignments. Dkt. 36 (Motion for 5 Voluntary Dismissal) at 20-22.

6 Perhaps the most flagrant example of the attempted cover up is the systematic failure to 7 disclose Stephens Media as an interested party—in this case or any of its other lawsuits in this 8 district—despite the fact that Stephens Media retained a 50% monetary interest in any settlement 9 or award to Righthaven. Dkt. 5 (Certificate of Interested Parties). Indeed, Stephens Media went 10 so far as to rely on Righthaven’s false Certificate of Interested Parties itself as a purported basis 11 for dismissal. Dkt. 56 at 10:20-22 (“Stephens Media has never been identified or disclosed as a 12 party who has a direct pecuniary interest in the outcome of any Righthaven case. And for good 13 reason . . .”). For this willful concealment of Stephens Media’s true relationship with 14 Righthaven, this Court sanctioned Righthaven $5,000, and ordered the transcript of its hearing to 15 be filed in every other Court in which similar litigation was proceeding, specifically noting that 16 actions were demonstrative of “bad faith” and “needlessly increased the costs of litigation[.]” Dkt.
 17 138 (“The Court finds there is a significant amount of evidence that Righthaven made intentional
 18 misrepresentations to the Court and also engaged in a concerted effort to hide Stephens Media’s 19 role in this litigation. This conduct demonstrated Righthaven’s bad faith, wasted judicial 20 resources, and needlessly increased the costs of litigation.”)

21 Given these facts, there could scarcely be any clearer case that Stephen Media’s and 22 Righthaven’s claims of Righthaven’s ownership were frivolous, in bad faith, and at least 23 objectively unreasonable, both legally and factually. See Fogerty I, 510 U.S. at 534 n.19; Perfect
 24 10, 488 F.3d at 1120. Indeed, this Court has already concluded as much, finding their arguments 25 to the contrary “disingenuous, if not outright deceitful.” Democratic Underground, 791 F. Supp.
 26 2d at 973.

27 <sup>7</sup> Stephens Media has made numerous misstatements of fact to the Court. For a more extensive 28 list, see Democratic Underground’s Reply to Stephens Media’s Response to the Supplemental Memorandum (Dkt. 108) at 2-3.

1                   2. Righthaven and Stephens Media Were Unreasonable in Denying that 2                   Democratic Underground Made a Fair Use of the News Article.

3                   It was likewise frivolous and unreasonable for Righthaven and Stephens Media to 4 maintain that Democratic Underground's passive hosting of a short excerpt of less than 10% of 5 the News Article for the purpose of allowing commentary and criticism about political issues was 6 infringing. Throughout this lawsuit both Stephens Media and Righthaven denied fair use. See, 7 e.g., Dkt. 58 at 12-19 (Righthaven's Opposition to Motion for Summary Judgment); Dkt. 125
 8 ¶¶ 102-125 (Stephens Media's Answer to Democratic Underground's Counterclaim). Before this 9 suit was filed, Righthaven had an obligation to investigate and make a determination of whether 10 the post was a fair use. Fed. R. Civ. P. 11. Obviously, this did not happen here. Neither 11 Righthaven nor Stephens Media presented any evidence to this court supporting any application 12 of the fair use factors in their favor. See Dkts. 58 (Righthaven summary judgment opposition); 13 174 (Stephens Media limited response to summary judgment).

14                   That these denials were unreasonable is supported by more than just this Court's order 15 finding that the use at issue was fair. Dkt. 179. Righthaven's and Stephens Media's own 16 concessions make the point. Righthaven acknowledged in another case in this district that an 17 even larger excerpt from a news article would have been a fair use.<sup>8</sup> Righthaven also moved to 18 voluntarily dismiss its claims in November, 2010, after Democratic Underground obtained 19 experienced, competent counsel to defend it. Dkt. 36. The problem—of Righthaven's and 20 Stephens Media's own making—was that they refused to simply dismiss, walk away, and let the 21 attorneys' fees fall where they might at that early point. Instead, they conditioned dismissal on 22 the unreasonable proposition that, after filing a baseless claim against Defendants plainly 23 protected by fair use, they should be immunized from the fees they inflicted.

24                   Even more stark, when Stephens Media was actually confronted with a motion for 25

26 <sup>8</sup> In opposition to the motion to dismiss in Realty One, Righthaven asserted that had the copying 27 been limited to the first two paragraphs of the article it would likely have constituted a fair use.
 28 See Righthaven LLC v. Realty One Group, Inc., Case No. 2:109-cv-0136-LRH-PAL, Dkt. 12 at 10-11. In that case, the first two paragraphs contained three sentences of the twenty eight sentence article, more than the 10% that was copied here. See id. Dkt. 1, Exs. 2-3.

1 summary judgment, it expressly contradicted its previous denials and affirmed that there was no 2 genuine dispute that the use at issue here was a protected fair use and included no volitional act.
 3 Dkt. 174 (Stephens Media’s Limited Response to Summary Judgment). No facts changed
 4 between Stephens Media’s denial of fair use and its concession in November of 2011. All that 5 changed was that a year of Democratic Underground’s litigation resources had been consumed.

6 The initiation of this lawsuit by Righthaven in furtherance of profits for Stephens Media, 7 as well as Stephens Media’s decision to not stop this lawsuit (as was its right), were done without 8 any reasonable basis to believe that Democratic Underground or Mr. Allen were infringing any 9 copyright of Righthaven. As such, this factor strongly favors an award of attorneys’ fees to 10 Democratic Underground.

11 C. Righthaven and Stephens Media Pursued this Lawsuit and Their Litigation
 12 Campaign for Improper Motives.

13 Righthaven and Stephens Media had an improper motivation in the pursuit of this lawsuit 14 and their litigation campaign more generally. They sought to shakedown websites operators and 15 bloggers for nuisance-value settlements with threats of seizure of their domain name and huge 16 statutory damage awards—not to mention the cost of defending in this remote forum—regardless 17 of whether those defendants’ uses of the works at issue were actually infringing. As this Court 18 explained, “Righthaven and Stephens Media have attempted to create a cottage industry of filing 19 copyright claims, making large claims for damages and then settling claims for pennies on the 20 dollar.” Dkt. 94 at 2 (Order on Motion for Reconsideration); see also Righthaven, LLC v. Hill, 21 Case No. 1:11-cv-00211-JLK (Dkt. 16) at 2 (D. Colo. April 7, 2011) (“Plaintiff’s wishes to the 22 contrary, the courts are not merely tools for encouraging and exacting settlements from 23 Defendants cowed by the potential costs of litigation and liability.”). In this action, as in their 24 other actions, suit was filed without any prior notice or request to takedown the purported 25 infringement. Allen Decl. ¶¶ 1-2. The strategy was not to curtail infringement, but to spring a 26 “gotcha”—and then lever the cost and threat of litigation. See Complaint, Dkt. 1 (asking for a 27 finding of “willful infringement” and turnover of domain name, based on the posting of only 10% 28

1 of an article, which was removed immediately upon receipt of notice of the claim).<sup>9</sup>

2 While Righthaven may have been the named Plaintiff in this lawsuit, Stephens Media 3 nevertheless “approved or consented” to the suit against Democratic Underground and had the 4 power to stop it anytime it wanted. See Democratic Underground, 791 F. Supp. 2d at 978 5 (“Contrary to its assertions in its moving papers, Stephens Media has threatened Democratic 6 Underground with litigation because, according to the SAA, Stephens Media approved or 7 consented to suit against Democratic Underground”); Dkt. 79-1, Ex. A (SAA) § 3.3 (discussing 8 Stephens Media’s ability to disapprove any proposed litigation by Righthaven on a Stephens 9 Media copyright); Pulgram Decl. Ex. H (letter from Righthaven to Stephens Media requesting 10 that Stephens Media advise Righthaven “within five business days, in accordance with Section 11 3.3” should Stephens “wish for Righthaven to refrain from pursuing infringement actions”).
12 Stephens Media’s then current CEO, Sherman Frederick, pithily summed up his company’s 13 motives to intimidate, stating: “don’t steal our content. Or, I promise you, you will meet my little 14 friend called Righthaven.” Dkt. 47 Ex. C.

15 Courts have repeatedly rejected these types of litigation programs as illegitimate and 16 supportive of an award of fees. See, e.g., Video-Cinema Films, Inc. v. CNN, Inc., 2003 U.S. Dist.
17 LEXIS 4887, at *15-16 (S.D.N.Y. Mar. 31, 2003); Bridgeport Music, Inc. v. Diamond Time, Ltd., 18 371 F.3d 883, 894 (6th Cir. 2004) (attorneys’ fees were appropriate where plaintiff’s “choice to 19 sue hundreds of defendants all at the same time, regardless of the strength of the individual 20 claims” resulted in their “dragnet inevitably [sweeping] up parties against whom they had little or 21 no chance of succeeding”).

22 In Video-Cinema, much as here, the plaintiff had brought a series of copyright 23 infringement lawsuits against news organizations for having used excerpts of the movie G.I. Joe 24 in television obituaries for the actor Robert Mitchum. Id. at *13-14. Much as with Righthaven 25 and Stephens Media, it was only after these excerpts were used that the plaintiff acquired the

26
27 <sup>9</sup> As this Court found, Righthaven’s demand for turnover of a domain name had no basis in law.
28 DiBiase, 2011 WL 1458778, at *2. Its inclusion was solely for the in terrorem effect, to push for settlements.

1 rights to the copyright in “an elaborate scheme to place himself in a position to sue” and then to 2 demand quick settlements—though in Video-Cinema, as opposed to here, actual rights were 3 transferred. Id. Also, much as in the present case, the court there concluded that airing the 4 excerpts was a protected fair use. Id. Addressing motivation, the Video-Cinema court concluded 5 that “Plaintiff’s conduct was nothing more than an obvious effort to use the Copyright Act to 6 secure payment from Defendants for their fair use,” a motivation the court unequivocally termed 7 “improper.” Id. at 15.

8 This lawsuit was no different. Righthaven, with Stephens Media’s approval and consent, 9 initiated this case against Democratic Underground with the hopes of securing a swift settlement, 10 to be shared with Stephens Media, regardless of the fact that the use at issue here was non-11 infringing. For good measure, it brought in Mr. Allen as an individual—without a shred of 12 evidence to support any claim against him personally. Allen Decl. ¶¶ 1-2 (Mr. Allen did not even 13 know of the alleged use until informed of this action by a competitor of the LVRJ). Righthaven 14 and Stephens Media’s ill motives to this end support an award of full attorneys’ fees.

15 D. An Award of Fees to Democratic Underground Is Supported by the Interests
 16 of Compensation and Deterrence.

17 Considerations of compensation and deterrence strongly support an award of attorneys’ 18 fees in this case as well. As to deterrence, an award of fees is necessary to dissuade these parties 19 and others from any similar scheme of shakedown lawsuits threatening staggering statutory 20 damage awards and seizure of websites. Righthaven and Stephens Media pursued these claims 21 such that numerous instances of legitimate fair use, like that here, would necessarily be dragged 22 into their litigation machine. See, e.g., Hoehn, 792 F. Supp. 2d at 1150 (granting summary 23 judgment for fair use against Righthaven); Righthaven, LLC v. Jama, 2011 WL 1541613, at *2
 24 (D. Nev. Apr. 22, 2011) (same); Righthaven, LLC v. Realty One Group, Inc., 2010 WL 4115413, 25 at *3 (D. Nev. Oct. 19, 2010) (granting motion to dismiss against Righthaven on fair use 26 grounds). This approach to copyright litigation has a serious potential, and likely the specific 27 aim, to chill legitimate speech in the form of fair uses of copyrighted works, and courts have 28 recognized that it should be deterred for precisely this reason. See Video-Cinema, 2003 U.S. Dist.

1 LEXIS 4887, at *15-16 (“fees are appropriate . . . to deter future copyright owners from using the 2 threat of litigation to chill other fair uses.”); see also Mattel, Inc. v. Walking Mountain
 3 Productions, 2004 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 12469, at *7 (C.D. Cal. June 24, 2004) (Plaintiff “brought 4 objectively unreasonable copyright claims against an individual artist. This is just the sort of 5 situation in which this Court should award attorneys fees to deter this type of litigation which 6 contravenes the intent of the Copyright Act”). Speech was chilled in this very case, as 7 Democratic Underground took down the excerpt immediately upon receiving notice, rather than 8 face even a small risk of the disabling remedies being threatened. Dkt. 48 (Declaration of David 9 Allen in Support of Defendants’ Consolidated Brief in Opposition to Righthaven’s Motion for 10 Voluntary Dismissal and Defendants’ Motion for Summary Judgment) ¶ 24.

11 As to compensation, Democratic Underground and its pro bono attorneys should be made 12 whole for the significant time and effort they were forced to incur in protecting and ultimately 13 vindicating important rights, both for Democratic Underground and the public. Righthaven and 14 Stephens Media took an absolutist and extreme position. They first conditioned a proposed 15 dismissal on not a cent being awarded for their opponent’s costs. They then proceeded to litigate 16 meritless and disingenuous claims in a manner that prolonged and extended the litigation.
 17 Democratic Underground no doubt could have capitulated for a small fraction of the amount that 18 was required to overcome the resistance of Righthaven and Stephens Media. But had it done so, 19 it would have paid an unjust toll. Unless counsel can obtain compensation for a defense such as 20 this, there will be no counterbalance to stop such an illegitimate scheme.

21 E. An Award of Democratic Underground’s Attorneys’ Fees Would Support the 22 Purposes of the Copyright Act.

23 An award of fees here will unquestionably further the purposes of the Copyright Act.
 24 First, in securing and gaining public disclosure of the SAA and proving that Righthaven did not 25 have standing to pursue this or any of its lawsuits, Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen played 26 a significant role in clearing out the over 200 lawsuits that Righthaven had filed in this district.
 27 Because Righthaven’s “litigation strategy . . . does nothing to advance the Copyright Act’s 28 purpose of promoting artistic creation,” helping to put a stop to it certainly promotes the purposes

1 of the Copyright Act. Jama, 2011 WL 1541613, at *5.

2 Democratic Underground’s successful pursuit of its fair use theory against Stephens 3 Media also well served the purposes of the Copyright Act. It helped to demarcate the boundaries
4 of copyright law and the permissible use of excerpts of news articles on the Internet. Fogerty I,
5 510 U.S. at 527 (“Because copyright law ultimately serves the purpose of enriching the general
6 public through access to creative works, it is peculiarly important that the boundaries of copyright 7 law be demarcated as clearly as possible.”). Courts routinely award attorneys’ fees under 8 Section 505 to parties successful on fair use grounds, as “[t]o hold otherwise would diminish any 9 incentive for defendants to incur the often hefty costs of litigation to defend the fair use doctrine.”
10 See Video-Cinema, 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 4887, at *15-16; see also Mattel Inc. v. Walking Mtn.
11 Productions, 353 F.3d 792, 816 (9th Cir. 2003) (successful fair use defense can further purposes 12 of copyright act, reversing denial of fees and remanding); Tavory v. NTP, Inc., 297 Fed. Appx.
13 986, 991 (Fed. Cir. 2008) (awarding fees to a prevailing defendant on a fair use defense); Compaq

16 Courts recognize the importance of “encouraging the creators of works of commentary and 17 criticism to litigate the fair use defense . . . by compensating them for their legal expenses [as 18 this] will enrich the public by increasing the supply and improving the content of commentary
19 and criticism.” Hofheinz v. AMC Prods., Inc., 2003 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 16940, at *20-21 20 (S.D.N.Y. Sep. 3, 2003).

21 The public significance of the result in this action has been widely recognized. A 22 “Google” search will reveal that this litigation received close attention from numerous media.

26 As each of the factors considered by the Ninth Circuit in determining whether to award 27 prevailing party fees strongly supports an award in this case, Democratic Underground and Mr.
28 Allen should be awarded their full reasonable attorneys’ fees.

1 II. DEMOCRATIC UNDERGROUND'S ATTORNEYS' FEES ARE REASONABLE 2 AND AT LEAST THE LODESTAR SHOULD BE AWARDED.

3 In determining an appropriate award of prevailing party attorneys' fees, courts employ the 4 lodestar method. See, e.g., Hensley v. Eckerhart, 461 U.S. 424, 433 (1983). The district court 5 must first determine the presumptive lodestar figure by multiplying the number of hours 6 reasonably expended on the litigation by a reasonable hourly rate. Id. After determining the 7 presumptive lodestar fee, the court may adjust the award either upward or downward based on 8 factors that are not subsumed in the determination of the lodestar itself including (i) time 9 limitations imposed by the client or other circumstances, (ii) the amount involved and the results 10 obtained, (iii) the experience, reputation, and ability of the attorneys, (iv) the desirability of the 11 case, (v) the nature and length of the professional relationship with the client, and (vi) awards in 12 similar cases. Van Asdale v. International Game Tech., Case No. 3:04-cv-00703-RAM, 2011 WL 13 2118637, at *2 (D. Nev. May 24, 2011) (citing factors set forth in Kerr v. Screen Extras Guild, 14 Inc., 526 F.2d 67, 69-70 (9th Cir. 1975) and explaining that other factors cited by Kerr have since 15 been subsumed into the lodestar analysis or otherwise disapproved by the Ninth Circuit). Under 16 this lodestar formula, Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen seek $774,683.25 in attorneys' 17 fees.<sup>10</sup>

18 A. Democratic Underground Attorneys' Worked a Reasonable Number of 19 Hours.

20 Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen were represented in this case by attorneys from 21 the EFF and Fenwick & West, both in San Francisco, California.<sup>11</sup> To determine the reasonable 22 hours worked in winning this case, attorneys from EFF and Fenwick started by considering the 23 <sup>10</sup> These figures only take into account work performed by Defendants' attorneys up until 24 March 31, 2012. Because work on this motion remains ongoing, Defendants' will update this 25 figure to take further account of the fees incurred in this motion in its reply submission to the Court.

26 <sup>11</sup> Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen were initially represented by attorneys, including 27 Andrew Bridges, from Winston & Strawn, LLP. After an issue of a potential conflict of interest 28 was raised, counsel from Winston & Strawn was substituted out for counsel from Fenwick.
 Defendants seek no fees for the tens of thousands of dollars in work incurred by counsel from Winston & Strawn in initially defending this action and bringing Democratic Underground's counterclaim against Righthaven and Stephens Media.

1 total hours worked by their respective teams, and from these total hours, took a conservative 2 approach, striking or reducing time entries where the work could be viewed as duplicative or 3 where the work took longer than might have reasonably been expected. See Declaration of Kurt 4 Opsahl (“Opsahl Decl.”) ¶¶ 12, 13, 30; Pulgram Decl. ¶¶ 12-14. For instance, in total, Fenwick 5 has reduced its hours by approximately 25% of those recorded to ensure limitation of its request
 6 to a reasonable figure. Id. ¶ 14.

7 As evidenced by the Declaration of Kurt Opsahl, attorneys from EFF are requesting 486
 8 hours in this case, following the reductions discussed above. Opsahl Decl. Ex. A. The principal 9 attorneys for whom fees are sought include Kurt Opsahl and Corynne McSherry, each of whom 10 specializes in this area of practice and has 15 and 10 years experience. Attorneys from Fenwick
 11 are requesting a total of 1346.6 hours, again following the reductions discussed above. Pulgram 12 Decl. Ex E. The attorneys for whom fees are sought include Laurence Pulgram, a senior partner 13 and one of the leading copyright litigators in the nation, who has extensive experience in fair use 14 cases in particular. Fees are also sought for associates Jennifer Johnson (over four years 15 experience), Clifford Webb (over three years experience) and David Marty (one-and-a-half years 16 experience), and for James Phan (senior paralegal) and Lisa Magee and Kim Ragab (paralegals).
 17 Other attorneys’ and staff at both EFF and Fenwick worked on this matter, but Democratic 18 Underground does not seek an award of their fees. Nor does Democratic Underground seek an 19 award of fees incurred by local counsel, Chad Bowers. In addition, prior to finding pro bono 20 counsel at EFF and Fenwick, Mr. Allen was forced to incur and pay $3,375 dollars in legal fees in 21 defending against Righthaven’s lawsuit for representation by counsel in Washington D.C. Those 22 fees are requested to be awarded. Allen Decl. ¶ 3 Ex. A.

23 The foregoing numbers fit comfortably within a reasonable range for the number of hours 24 that needed to be worked in a case of this magnitude and complexity. The intransigence of 25 Righthaven and Stephens Media’s resistance, perhaps as a result of the significance of the stakes, 26 have substantially increased the scope of work required. There have been nearly two hundred 27 docket entries in this case to date—far more than any other Righthaven-related case. Democratic 28 Underground’s attorneys prepared an answer to Righthaven’s complaint and drafted a detailed

1 Counterclaim against Righthaven and Stephens Media. Dkt. 13. They were forced to respond to 2 Righthaven's improper motion for voluntary dismissal (Dkt. 36) and Stephens Media's and 3 Righthaven's disingenuous motions to dismiss the counterclaim. Dkt. 39. They needed to file two 4 separate motions for summary judgment on the merits, first against Righthaven (mooted on the 5 merits after briefing on standing issues), and then Stephens Media. Dkts. 45, 168. Once the SAA
6 surfaced, they were then forced to file and respond to serial briefing on the issues of Righthaven's 7 standing and Stephens's Media's ownership of the copyright at issue, including reviewing and 8 analyzing three separate iterations of the Righthaven and Stephens Media's SAA, along with 9 Righthaven's Operating Agreement. Even following the Court's order finding that Righthaven 10 had no standing and that Stephens Media was the real party in interest, Democratic 11 Underground's attorneys then had to respond to motions to intervene and for reconsideration on 12 these same topics, to which a consolidated response was filed. Dkts. 120, 126, 134, 136.

13 Democratic Underground's counsel additionally responded to and appeared in support of 14 an order to show cause why Righthaven should not be sanctioned for failing to disclose the 15 existence and nature of its true relationship with Stephens Media in this case. Dkt. 133. They 16 issued substantial discovery to Righthaven and Stephens Media and had to engage in lengthy 17 meet and confer efforts when neither provided sufficient responses. To this end, they were 18 eventually forced to file a consolidated motion to compel, two separate replies, and attend a 19 hearing on the motion as to Stephens Media and Righthaven. Dkts. 95, 112, 114.

20 None of these were simple or ministerial tasks. Each required substantial analysis and 21 investigation of the complex issues presented by Righthaven and Stephens Media's claims and 22 scheme. Indeed, as this Court already recognized, it was Righthaven and Stephens Media's 23 actions in concealing much of this that has multiplied the hours that the Court and Democratic 24 Underground's attorneys were forced to incur. Dkt. 138 (Minutes of Proceedings on Order to 25 Show Cause). All in all, the number of hours worked by counsel for Democratic Underground 26 and Mr. Allen are conservatively stated and reasonable.

27 B. The Rates Sought Are Reasonable Given the Complex Nature of this Case.

28 Likewise, the rates applied by counsel for Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen, as 1 detailed by the supporting declaration of Kurt Opsahl and Laurence Pulgram, are reasonable.

 2 EFF attorneys for Defendants billed their time in a range from $400 and $600 an hour, in 3 accordance with EFF's 2010 billing rates (or 2011 billing rates for attorneys hired in 2011). As 4 explained by the Declaration of Kurt Opsahl, Mr. Opsahl and co-counsel at EFF have substantial 5 experience and expertise in litigating complex copyright and intellectual property cases such as 6 this. Opsahl Decl. ¶¶ 3, 9, 10, 14, 17, 20, 23. Further, courts across the country have found these 7 rates to be reasonable and have awarded EFF fees according to them. See Elec. Frontier
 8 Foundation v. Office of the Director of National Intelligence, No. 07-05278 SI, 2008 WL
 9 2331959 (N.D. Cal. June 4, 2008) (Judge Illston found reasonable the 2007 hourly rates of EFF's 10 attorneys, and awarded a total of $51,540.00 in attorneys' fees at those rates); Apple v. Does 11 (Santa Clara Superior Ct., Case No. 1-04-cv-032178) (EFF was awarded attorneys' fees in 12 accordance with their lawyers' 2006 and 2007 rates); In re Sony BMG CD Technologies 13 Litigation (S.D.N.Y. Case No 1:05-cv-09575-NRB) (EFF attorneys were paid fees at their hourly 14 rates as part of the settlement of the action in June 2006); OPG v. Diebold, 337 F. Supp. 2d 1195 15 (N.D. Cal. 2004) (EFF attorneys were paid fees after a summary judgment victory at the 16 organization's 2004 hourly rates).

17 Attorneys for Fenwick, as explained in the supporting Declaration of Laurence Pulgram, 18 are requesting rates in between $270 and $600 an hour in this matter. Pulgram Decl. ¶¶ 4-7.
 19 These rates are in line with their rates in 2010, and thus significantly beneath their rates in 2011
 20 and 2012, when the bulk of the litigation occurred. Id. The exception is Mr. Pulgram, for whom 21 the rate requested in this action ($600) is some 20% less than even his 2010 standard rate. Id. ¶ 4.
 22 The concession to these limited rates, as well as the reduction in hours of some 25%, reflects 23 Fenwick's interest in obtaining fair compensation, not some windfall, for the times invested.
 24 These rates are entirely reasonable for this case. Mr. Pulgram has more than twenty five years 25 experience litigating some of the more complex and cutting edge copyright cases in the country.
 26 Id. ¶ 4, Ex. A. Co-counsel at Fenwick also have substantial experience and expertise in dealing 27 with complex copyright and intellectual property matters. Id. ¶¶ 5-7.

28 Fenwick's market rates are the default for making the lodestar calculation. See Moore v.

1 Jas H. Matthews & Co., 682 F.2d 839, 840 (9th Cir. 1982) (“Unless counsel is working outside 2 his or her normal area of practice, the billing-rate multiplier is, for practical reasons, usually 3 counsel’s normal billing rate.”). Moreover, these rates are in line with the rates charged by other
 4 comparable law firms. Pulgram Decl. ¶ 9. Additionally, numerous courts have approved 5 Fenwick’s rates—and Mr. Pulgram’s team in particular—as reasonable. See Yue v. Storage Tech 6 Corp., 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 68920, at *13-14 (N.D. Cal. Sep. 5, 2008) (report and 7 recommendation in copyright case, approving 2008 rate of $690 for Mr. Pulgram), adopted by 8 2008 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 68801 (N.D. Cal. Sept. 5, 2008); Netbula v. Chordiant Software, Inc., 9 case No. 5:08-cv-00019-JW, Dkt. 594 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 17, 2010) (approving 2008 rate of $690 for 10 Mr. Pulgram); Jones v. Corbis Corp., CV 10-8668-SVW CWX, 2011 WL 4526084 (C.D. Cal.
 11 Aug. 24, 2011) (in case involving right of publicity and copyright issues, approving rates 12 specially discounted for that client of $652.50 for Mr. Pulgram).

13 That this case required specialized counsel to address the complex copyright issues 14 presented can be subject to little dispute. Both Righthaven and Stephens Media, with much 15 fanfare, hired a New York based Kirkland & Ellis copyright litigation partner, Dale Cendali, to 16 represent them in this matter. Dkt. 119 (Pro Hac Vice application by Dale Cendali to appear on 17 behalf of both Righthaven and Stephens Media); Pulgram Decl. Ex. D. Ms. Cendali’s billing rate 18 in this case has not been publicly disclosed. That said, colleagues of Ms. Cendali at Kirkland & 19 Ellis have publicly available billing rates for 2011 with an average of $817.93 an hour for 20 partners, $527.10 an hour for associates, and $219.55 an hour for paralegals, all well above both 21 EFF’s and Fenwick’s billing rates in this case. Pulgram Decl. ¶ 10, Exs. B-C. Given this and the 22 substantial support for the reasonableness of EFF’s and Fenwick’s fees in this matter, the rates 23 provided in the supporting declarations of Kurt Opsahl and Laurence Pulgram should be used in 24 calculating the lodestar figure.

25 C. This Case Warrants at Least an Award of the Lodestar Amount, If Not a 26 Multiplier.

27 This case warrants at least an award of the full lodestar figure for Democratic 28 Underground and Mr. Allen. Defending against Righthaven’s claims, prosecuting the 1 Counterclaim and exposing Stephens Media as the real party in interest were difficult tasks that 2 required significant expertise. Indeed, Righthaven's previous successes in convincing courts, at 3 the pleading stage, that it had standing to pursue these types of actions demonstrates as much.

 4 See Righthaven, LLC v. Vote For The Worst, LLC, et al., Case No. 2:10-cv-01045-KJDGWF (D.
 5 Nev. Mar. 30, 2011) (Dkt. 28); Righthaven, LLC v. Majorwager.com, Inc., Case No. 2:10-cv-
 6 00484-GMNLRL, 2010 WL 4386499 (D. Nev. Oct. 28, 2010); Righthaven, LLC v. Dr. Shezad
 7 Malik Law Firm P.C., Case No. 2:10-cv-00636-RLH-RJJ, 2010 WL 3522372 (D. Nev. Sept. 2, 8 2010). Moreover, in addition to achieving a total vindication of Democratic Underground's 9 rights, counsel in this case further aided to clear hundreds of Righthaven's illegitimate copyright 10 infringement suits from the this District's dockets. Counsel did this without any prior 11 relationship to Mr. Allen or his website, and on a pro bono basis, with no assurance of any 12 recovery. That meant Fenwick had to divert significant attorney resources away from 13 representing paying clients to ensure that Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen received able 14 representation. Likewise, EFF had to pass up other opportunities to provide legal services in 15 order to take on this case. Especially given the significant public benefit created by the winning 16 result, the "non-subsumed Kerr factors" suggest that an enhancement of the lodestar would be 17 warranted in this case, should the Court choose to do so. Van Asdale, 2011 WL 2118637, at *2.

18 D. Democratic Underground's Attorneys' Have Absorbed All Costs in this 19 Litigation, to be Paid Only from the Fee Award.

20 Under the Copyright Act, as prevailing parties, Democratic Underground and Mr. Allen 21 are entitled to "full costs" in addition to fees. 17 U.S.C. § 505; Twentieth Century Fox Film 22 Corp. v. Entertainment Distribution, 429 F. 3d 869, 885 (9th Cir. 2005) (Section 505 authorizes 23 an award of non-taxable costs in addition to fees); see also Fed. R. Civ. P. 54 (providing for 24 recovery of taxable costs). Democratic Underground incurred in excess of $30,000 in taxable and 25 non-taxable costs in this action for research fees, travel expenses, delivery costs, copying costs, 26 document preparation, and pro hac vice fees. See Pulgram Decl. ¶ 17; Opsahl Decl. ¶ 29; Allen 27 Decl. ¶ 3; Ex. A. In addition to otherwise substantially reducing the fees actually incurred in 28 successfully litigation this case, Democratic Underground's attorneys have written off all of these

1 costs. Pulgram Decl. ¶ 17; Opsahl Decl. ¶ 29. This further demonstrates the reasonableness of 2 the fees sought by Democratic Underground in successfully litigating this case.

3 III. STEPHENS MEDIA AND RIGHTHAVEN SHOULD BE JOINTLY AND 4 SEVERALLY LIABLE FOR DEMOCRATIC UNDERGROUND'S ATTORNEYS' 5 FEES.

6 Under both federal and Nevada law, where attorneys' fees are incurred in prosecution or 7 defense of a party's claims against multiple opposing parties, the losing parties are jointly and 8 severally liable for an award of prevailing party's fees incurred where there are common issues
 9 between the parties such that the defense or prosecution of claims becomes intertwined. See, e.g., 10 Kona Enterprises, Inc. v. Estate of Bishop, 229 F.3d 877 (9th Cir. 2007) (where same claims were 11 raised by all of the plaintiff, they were all jointly and severally liable for all defendant's fees); In 12 re USA Commercial Mortgage Co., 802 F. Supp. 2d 1147, 1180 (D. Nev. 2011) (holding award 13 of attorneys' fees should be borne jointly and severally by all defendants where issues were 14 "inextricably intertwined" and "common to" all defendants); Mayfield v. Koroghli, 124 Nev. 343, 15 346 (2008) (where issues litigated by a prevailing party against multiple defendants were 16 sufficiently common to make apportionment impracticable then joint and several liability was 17 appropriate); see also Turner v. District of Columbia Board of Elections, 354 F.3d 890, 898 (D.C.
 18 Cir. 2006) ("a plaintiff's fully compensatory fee for claims 'centered on a set of common issues' 19 against two or more jointly responsible defendants should be assessed jointly and severally"); 20 Anderson v. Griffin, 397 F.3d 515, 522-23 (7th Cir. 2005) ("the presumptive rule is joint and 21 several liability unless it is clear that one or more of the losing parties is responsible for a 22 disproportionate share of the costs"). The only context in which responsibilities for fees should 23 be apportioned between the losing parties is where the issues involved and the litigation of those 24 issues are readily distinguishable. See Turner, 354 F.3d at 898 ("if claims are not attributable to 25 all defendants and are not 'centered on a set of common issues,' i.e., claims that are 'truly 26 fractionable,' fees should be apportioned, 'in order to ensure that a defendant is not liable for a 27 fee award greater than the actual fees incurred against that defendant'") (quoting Jones v. Espy, 28 10 F.3d 690, 691 (9th Cir. 1993)).

1 The Court may also consider the relative ability or inability of parties to pay in making a 2 determination of whether fees should be joint and several. Id. (“a number of courts have upheld 3 the imposition of joint and several liability for a fee award where there existed a question as to 4 whether the fee would be collectible from one of the defendants”) (quoting Koster v. Perales, 903 5 F.2d 131, 138 (2d Cir. 1990).

6 This case is a prime example of one where joint and several liability for fees is 7 appropriate. The primary issues litigated in this case were common to both Stephens Media and 8 Righthaven: whether Righthaven or Stephens Media owned the copyrights at issue in this case; 9 whether the hosting of an excerpt of the News Article on Democratic Underground’s website was 10 a fair use; whether posting by the user was fair; whether it constituted a volitional act on the part 11 of the Defendants for the purposes of infringement. Those issues permeated all motions filed by 12 Righthaven or Stephens Media or Democratic Underground. And their outcome directly 13 implicated Stephens Media just as much as Righthaven, since their fates on all issues rose and fell 14 together. Thus, it is no surprise that Ms. Cendali was engaged to represent both Counterclaim 15 Defendants. Dkt. 119. Indeed, the lions’ share of the work in this case was exposing Righthaven 16 and Stephens Media’s illegal scheme—whereby Righthaven would obtain the bare right to sue 17 under a copyright, in violation of Silvers, and Stephens Media would retain actual ownership and 18 control—and then defending against efforts to avoid this Court’s ruling on that basis.

19 Beyond the commonality of the issue between Righthaven and Stephens Media, the very 20 nature of their scheme counsels for imposition of any fee award against Righthaven and Stephens 21 Media on a joint and several basis. Righthaven, under the terms of the SAA , operated as the de
 22 facto agent of Stephens Media. See n. 1, supra. The suit was brought after Stephens Media
 23 approved of the “assignment” of the copyright in issue, with Stephens Media standing to recover 24 50% of the proceeds. Dkt. 38 Ex. 1; SAA § 5 Stephens Media had the absolute ability to stop 25 Righthaven from pursuing this lawsuit under the SAA, either before or after it was filed. See, 26 e.g., Pulgram Decl. Ex. H. But Stephens Media chose not to do so, even after being itself joined 27 as a Counterclaim Defendant, thereby approving the suit. See Democratic Underground, 791 F.
 28 Supp. 2d at 978 (“Contrary to its assertions in its moving papers, Stephens Media has threatened

1 Democratic Underground with litigation because, according to the SAA, Stephens Media
 2 approved or consented to suit against Democratic Underground”); SAA § 3.3. Supporting this,
 3 Stephens Media’s own General Counsel, Mark Hinueber, has made numerous public statements 4 discussing its control over who Righthaven, acknowledging, for instance, that “I can tell 5 Righthaven not to sue somebody.” Dkt. 47 ¶¶ 7, 13-15, Exs. B, H-J.

6 As this Court put it, “the arrangement between Righthaven and Stephens Media is nothing 7 more nor less than a law firm.” Dkt. 137 at 14:18-20. Had Righthaven and Stephens Media 8 simply entered into an attorney-client relationship openly, instead of creating a complex scheme
 9 whereby Stephens Media would appear to assign copyrights to Righthaven but retain a 50% 10 interest in recoveries, there would be no question that Stephens Media would be responsible for 11 Democratic Underground’s fees here.<sup>12</sup> Stephens Media should not be able to exploit the precise 12 scheme this Court held improper in order to avoid part of the fees its scheme imposed.

13 Moreover, Righthaven’s likely inability to pay here also favors an award on a joint and 14 several basis. As this Court is likely aware, Righthaven has defaulted on all orders to pay 15 attorneys’ fees in its unsuccessful copyright infringement scheme. Righthaven has never paid the 16 sanctions award in this action. In Righthaven v. Hoehn, Judge Pro recently issued an order 17 transferring all of Righthaven’s intellectual property to a receiver for auction in order to cover 18 some of the $34,045.50 attorneys’ fee award in that case, which Righthaven refused to post a 19 supersedeas bond to cover. Righthaven v. Hoehn, Case No. 2:11-cv-00050-PMP-RJJ, Dkt. 90.
 20 Ms. Cendali, on March 21, 2012, withdrew from her representation. Righthaven’s other attorney, 21 Mr. Mangano, has also stopped appearing in any actions,<sup>13</sup> and Righthaven has defaulted on its 22 appeal. Dkts. 183, 185. Righthaven’s inability to pay is not surprising given that it was

23 [REDACTED]
 24 [REDACTED], and subsequently brought hundreds of copyright infringement lawsuits. For all these 25 _____

 26 <sup>12</sup> As part of its attempt to isolate itself from liability, Stephens Media acknowledged that “Stephens Media and Righthaven may be liable for an Infringer’s attorneys’ fees,” but provided that Righthaven would indemnify Stephens Media. SAA § 11.

27 <sup>13</sup> Steven Gibson, CEO of Righthaven, has recently complained to this Court of Mr. Mangano’s 28 failures to appear before this Court. Righthaven, LLC v. DiBiase, Case No. 2:10-cv-01343-RLH-
 PAL, Dkt. 110 at 7; Dkt. 111 (Gibson Declaration).
